SECTION 2

APPLICANT INFORMATION

DO I HAVE TO AGREE TO A SECURITY CHECK?

You must consent to the Aviation Security Service carrying out a security (background) check on you to determine whether you pose a threat to aviation security. If you refuse to consent to a security check, your application will not be considered.

In carrying out a security check, we ask people or organisations to disclose information about you. For example, we can seek: a recommendation from the New Zealand Security Intelligence Service, information about your criminal record (if any) from the Ministry of Justice, or information from the New Zealand Customs Service or the New Zealand Immigration Service.

You and your employer will be informed whether you have received a favourable security check determination or an adverse security check determination. Advice to your employer will not include the reason for, or details of, any determination.

Adverse security check determination

In the event of an adverse security check determination, you will be advised of your right to have that decision reviewed under section 128 of the Civil Aviation Act 2023.

However, if you wish to have an adverse determination reviewed that is based solely on a decision by the New Zealand Security Intelligence Service under section 11 of the Intelligence and Security Act 2017, in accordance with section 171 of that Act, you must make a complaint to the Inspector-General of Intelligence and Security instead.

The Director of Civil Aviation may, at any time, reconsider a previous favourable security check determination if new information is made available, or if there is reason to suspect that a person may pose a threat to aviation security (sections 126 and 127, Civil Aviation Act 2023).

WHAT HAPPENS TO MY PERSONAL INFORMATION?

Information contained in this application will be kept in the strictest confidence and handled according to the principles of the Privacy Act 2020. Under the Privacy Act 2020 you have the right to request access to, or correction of, any personal information held by the Aviation Security Service.
